

ATTACKS ON SEC CLINTON 7-2-15

Summary

- Lindsey Graham said Secretary Clinton would be an Obama third term, with Carly Fiorina saying she has already doubled down on Obama's "failed" policies.
- Bobby Jindal accused Secretary Clinton of saying pro-life people had to change their beliefs, and accused her of trying to "silence" religious individuals and of mounting an "all-out assault on religious freedom."
- Lindsey Graham said Secretary Clinton's "fingerprints [were] all over" Obama's foreign policy, and asked what her position on Cuba was.
- Chris Christie warned against turning the presidency over to Secretary Clinton because she was Obama's "second mate."
- Carly Fiorina said Clinton has no track record of accomplishment and Scott Walker implied she had not accomplished anything.
- Chris Christie criticized Clinton's Russia 'reset' button.
- Carly Fiorina hit Secretary Clinton over Benghazi extensively and said the GOP nominee would need to go after Clinton on Benghazi.
- Bobby Jindal said with Secretary Clinton in charge, the U.S. economy would go the way of Greece, as Clinton wants us to go "further down the road of socialism."
- Mike Huckabee said Clinton's evolution on same-sex marriage was an example of following instead of leading.
- Bobby Jindal criticized Clinton of "evolving with the polls" on marriage.
- Carly Fiorina said Secretary Clinton lacked transparency.
- Lindsey Graham said it was easier to get an interview with a Middle Eastern leader than with Secretary Clinton.
- Jeb Bush accused Clinton of hiding in an invitation-only "cocoon" instead of interacting with a wide audience.
- Bobby Jindal hit Clinton over her private server and said Russia and China could have accessed her emails, as did Scott Walker.
- Ted Cruz said Clinton's private email server was a security risk and that DOJ should investigate her.
- Bobby Jindal accused Clinton of hiding and destroying the private emails she didn't want the public to see, and accused her of dishonesty and breaching national security.
- Ted Cruz hit Clinton over Clinton Foundation foreign donors and speaking fees received by Bill Clinton.
- Scott Walker called foreign donations to the Clinton Foundation while Secretary Clinton served at State a "conflict of interest."
- Jeb Bush mocked high speaking fees for the Clintons and joked that he earned less for an appearance than Chelsea Clinton.
- Rand Paul accused the Clintons of proudly presiding over mass incarceration instead of alleviating poverty and reducing crime.
- Scott Walker implied that Secretary Clinton was "name from the past."
- Scott Walker called Secretary Clinton "out of touch."
- Scott Walker implied that Secretary Clinton was divisive.
- Carly Fiorina said that Clinton lacked a "track record of leadership."
- Scott Walker said that Secretary Clinton "embodies Washington."
- Rand Paul claimed he was best positioned to beat Secretary Clinton.
- Rand Paul hit Secretary Clinton for being "bad on privacy" and supporting NSA's bulk collection program.
- Lindsey Graham said Secretary Clinton would embrace the Affordable Care Act as a third Obama term.
- Lindsey Graham criticized Secretary Clinton over the hypothetical Supreme Court nominations she would make as president.
- Carly Fiorina mocked Secretary Clinton for wanting to "run on being a grandmother and coloring her hair."
- Chris Christie said Secretary Clinton "shouldn't be president" and said Bill Clinton was "charming" and "an okay president."

>> how quickly do you think you'll comply with the law?

>> it will be up to the court as soon as they issue their ruling. i suspect a matter of days. chuck, i do suspect -- i know there are efforts in congress to support our tenth amendment rights, spes rights, especially when it comes to our rights. i think it is wrong for the federal government to force christian individuals, businesses, pastors, churches, to participate in wedding ceremonies that violate our sincerely sincerely-held religious beliefs. the left wants to silence us. hillary clinton wants to silence us. we're not going away.

>> the issue of religion and faith was used in the '60s during the debate about interracial marriage. none other than former president harry truman, "the new york times" since september 1, 1963. the headline, truman opposes biracial marriage. he said racial intermarriage ran counter to teachings of the bible. so, are you comfortable using religion as a way to defend your position on marriage?

>> chuck, look, i think it's offensive to -- of evangelical christians, catholics to follow their church's teachings and millions of other americans who believe marriage between a man and woman was taught in our faiths for centuries. president obama and secretary clinton, it wasn't just a republican position. so, i think it's offensive to try to equate the two.

“He also argued that protecting same-sex marriage would open the door to discrimination against people of faith who oppose its practice. ‘Hillary Clinton and the Left will now mount an all-out assault on religious freedom guaranteed in the first amendment,’ Jindal said of the Democratic 2016 front-runner. ‘Regardless of your views on marriage, all freedom-loving people must pledge to respect our first amendment rights,’ he added. Republican presidential candidate Carly Fiorina argued “we’d better have a nominee next summer” who will “drive Benghazi “over and over and over in the debates” on Tuesday’s “Hugh Hewitt Show.”

After she was asked, “Is there a cover-up underway that Mrs. Clinton is a part of?” Regarding Benghazi, Fiorina responded, “Well, it certainly looks that way, doesn’t it?”

Fiorina added, “I mean, it certainly appears that Mrs. Clinton and President Obama, Secretary of State Clinton and President Obama, knew immediately that these were terrorist attacks, that they had been pre-planned, that this was not a casual demonstration. And yet, both of them, including Mrs. Clinton, stood over coffins, and told the American people, for many weeks following that, that this was a demonstration, that we couldn’t have predicted this. And later, of course, Mrs. Clinton said to a Congressional hearing, what possible difference could it make why or how these Americans were murdered. It’s stunning. And yet we also know, Hugh, I will remind you and all of your listeners we really thought in 2012 that Benghazi was going to be Obama’s great Achilles’ heel in the 2012 election. It turned out not to be the case. And it wasn’t the case, because unfortunately, our nominee, a good man, he would have made a fine president, but our nominee wouldn’t drive the point home, which is why no matter how bad Benghazi looks now, we’d better have a nominee next summer who will drive this point home over and over and over in the debates, because otherwise, I fear Mrs. Clinton will get away with Benghazi just as President Obama did.”

“This is the American future if we continue going down the road that President Obama has us on, and that Hillary Clinton wants to continue and even accelerate.

Speaking in Denver at the Western Conservatives Summit on Saturday, the Wisconsin governor spelled out his criteria for judges and weighed in on the religious liberty debate.

In his remarks, Walker also went after Hillary Clinton for using a private email server while she was secretary of state -- a topic of renewed attention after the recent security breach at the Office of Personnel Management that compromised the personal data of an estimated 18 million current, former and prospective federal employees.

"This is funny and I wish it wasn't funny," Walker said, jokingly. "But it's probably true today that China and maybe even Russia probably know more about what was on Hillary Clinton's server than do members of the ... United State Congress."

He argued any "high school freshman taking an ethics course" could recognize that the Clinton Foundation's acceptance of donations from foreign governments while she was serving as secretary of state was a "conflict of interest."

"Hillary Clinton is woefully out of touch with mainstream America," he said.

Asked how Republicans can beat Clinton in the general election, Walker -- who recently said he'll announce his 2016 decision the week of July 13 -- repeated a line that he used earlier this year that's also viewed as a knock against Jeb Bush.

"If we're going to beat a name from the past, we need a name from the future -- not a name from the past," he said.

JINDAL: Sec. Clinton Breached National Security, U.S. Only Superpower Not Seeing Sec. Clinton's E-mails

WEST DES MOINES, IA – Governor Bobby Jindal said Secretary Hillary Clinton has "created a major breach of national security" by hiding her e-mails on a personal server and that the United States may be the only superpower in the world who hasn't seen the Secretary's e-mails.

Governor Jindal said, "Today the State Department plans to release more of Hillary Clinton's e-mails from her private server. Every time this happens, it gets treated as breaking news. But there are two very important things in this continuing drama that are routinely overlooked.

"First, the American public is only getting the emails that Hillary Clinton herself is allowing us to see. She has already edited the e-mails, and has already destroyed the ones she did not want us to see, which makes the whole thing a meaningless charade.

"Secondly, and far more importantly, by choosing to use her own server in her own house she created a major breach of national security. Everyone seems to focus on the dishonesty, the lack of transparency, and the fact that she destroyed all these records. But those are standard practices for the Clintons.

"The real issue is that while the American people will never see these emails, it is likely that the Russians and the Chinese already have all of them. This is the real consequence of having a Secretary of State who unlawfully chose to conduct America's foreign policy business on her own private email system.

"If the Congressional leaders really want to see all of Hillary Clinton's e-mails, they would have a better chance of getting them from the hackers working for foreign governments. We are likely the only superpower in the world that will never see Hillary Clinton's e-mails."

Attacks Her On Equal Pay:

Scott Walker: Hillary Clinton Uses Equal Pay advocacy To 'Pit One Group of Americans Versus Another'

June 24, 2015 10:30 am • By Molly Beck | Wisconsin State Journal

Hillary Clinton's support for legislation that would address a disparity between what men and women earn is a political tactic to "pit one group of Americans versus another," Gov. Scott Walker said last week.

Walker's comments were made June 17 on the radio show "Boston Herald Drive" in Boston and published online by the liberal blog Right Wing Watch on Tuesday.

In the 22-minute interview, radio host Adriana Cohen asked Walker to weigh in on Clinton advocating for equal pay legislation after a disputed report was released indicating women on Clinton's former New York U.S. Senate staff were paid less than men working for her.

"I think it's part of that amazing double standard," Walker replied. "But I think even a bigger issue than that. And this is sadly something that would make her consistent with the president, and that is I believe that the president and now Hillary Clinton tend to think that politically, they do better if they pit one group of Americans versus another."

Walker said the focus, rather, should be on ensuring all Americans have the skills and qualifications "they need to succeed in life."

When asked to clarify which groups Walker was referring to, AshLee Strong, spokeswoman for Walker's political nonprofit Our American Revival, said Wednesday that Walker "was addressing the overall point" that Democrats like Obama and Clinton are again "being divisive on an important issue instead of working to provide solutions for Americans" and that Walker "fully supports equal pay for equal work."

Walker also said Clinton and other Democrats measure success by how many people are dependent on the government, reiterating a common refrain he uses in stump speeches across the country.

Walker is expected to announce next month a bid for the 2016 GOP presidential nomination.

Clinton, expected to be the Democratic presidential nominee, has already begun criticizing GOP hopefuls on equal pay — pointing to comments Walker made when he signed a bill in 2012 that repealed Wisconsin's 2009 Equal Pay Enforcement Act, which allowed lawsuits alleging claims of unequal pay to be filed in state court instead of only in federal court.

At the time, Walker called debate over the repeal "a bogus issue."

"You gotta push back," he said when asked about Clinton's criticism. "I ran against someone by the name of Mary Burke last (election). We had some of the same sorts of attacks out there."

During her campaign to unseat Walker as governor in 2014, Burke hammered Walker on the repeal, saying it left women without equal pay protections in Wisconsin.

In the interview, Walker emphasized he supports the state's Fair Employment Act. "The law that I signed a repeal on was a law that was really just a handout to the trial attorneys," he said. "It technically had never been used because the law that's already in place, that's still in place today — a law that I support — says it's illegal to discriminate in employment based on sex just as it is on race and other categories."

Fellow Conservative,

This is urgent.

Rand asked me to email you right away about the deadline to reach $1 million raised for his End of Quarter Money Bomb.

The media has tried to destroy his candidacy from day one because they see the polls that show him as the Republican best positioned to defeat Hillary Clinton.

So they are trying to push the story that the choices in 2016 are "inevitable."

Can he count on you to chip in a contribution of \$20.16 before the deadline?

A strong fundraising report will put the political world on notice that the conservative grassroots have the final say on who our party nominates.

And there are less than 8 hours until the deadline!

Time is running out so please chip in a contribution of \$20.16 right away.
